Description

A superb Georgian oak longcase clock c1810 ~~ Fully restored and serviced ~~ This is a fabulous longcase clock made by William Berry of Gateshead dated to around 1810. The case is made of quarter sawn english oak and flame mahogany with beautiful figuring which has mellowed over the centuries into a warm colour, the grain and patina is just superb. The case is decorated with satinwood stringing and mahogany crosbanding, this theme is carried on through the trunk, door and base which also has fine mahogany crossbanding. The case is enhanced with satin wood stringing to the canted corners and reeded pillars to the hood. It also has a fully working lock and key. The glass in the hood is in perfect condition with no chips or cracks. The clock dial is of polished solid brass with decorative corner spandrels and roman numeral chapter ring, of course it is fully marked William Berry Gateshead. It has a superb 8 day movement with working seconds. The clock strikes the hours on a large bell and is keeping good time. The clock is in full working order and has just been serviced by Alan Williams of Plymouth clocks who is a Fellow of the British Horological Institute so ...
