Description

Edwardian mahogany breakfront bookcase This Edwardian mahogany breakfront bookcase was made circa 1900. It is fitted 4 doors that are fully glazed with the superb astragal bars. To each end you have a single glazed door that opens to reveal adjustable shelves, then you have the breakfront deeper section with double central doors that open for you to place your books on these adjustable shelves. The bookcase stands on bracket feet. It has attractive satinwood banding that makes this even more outstanding. Imagine the number of books you can store away from dust as they are protected by the wonderfully glazed doors.
