Description

This is a rather spectacular 18th century Italian desk. Made entirely of walnut which has gained a beautiful patina from years of use. The desk is 18th century but the feet and side stretchers are slightly later most likely early 20th century (certainly not modern). Unless viewed the underside you wouldn't be able to tell. The majority is all original which is great to see. The geometric drawer fronts is what drew me to this originally and these details continue around the entire piece so it can be viewed from all sides. Great condition overall and a real statement piece in a room. A desk was its original purpose but also useable as a console table or vanity table.
