Description

An extremely rare Angelus Sixsome eight day travelling alarm clock and desk compendium, containing an eight day running alarm clock, with full Calendar, Barometer, Hygrometer, thermometer and compass, housed in an immaculate gilded panel, all contained in a folding pig skin bound case. This example was made between 1945 and 1952, and due to the original retail cost not many were made, this example is in near mint condition with no losses to the gilding or blemishes to the leather, presumably having never been used for travel. Angelus's famed 8 day watch movement runs the alarm clock and advances calendar. This example was made for the British market as the calendar and barometer are in English.
