A small leather cased medicine glass made by S. Maw, Son & Sons, medical instruments manufacturer of Aldersgate, London some time between 1870 and 1901. The little glass is in excellent condition, and has the engraved measurements for tablespoon, desert spoon and tea spoon - for all your measuring needs! The leather case shows the surface wear to be expected of an item of this age, but is in good sound condition, strong and sturdy.
