Description

A superb example of a primitive Windsor chair. It dates from the late 18th Century and most likely originates from the Westcountry. It has a hoop back enclosing spindles with a curving arm supported by turned spindles. It has a solid flat fronted fruitwood seat and stands on four simple turned legs joined by a H-stretcher. It is a good comfortable chair, sturdy and well made. The patina on the seat is stunning and the chair has a fantastic look with layers of original paint and stain attractively worn away over the years. It is approximately 42" (107cm) high and the arms are 24 1/2" (62cm) wide. The seat is 15" (38cm) deep and stands 16" (41cm) high. It is in very good condition for its age and is strong and sturdy. There are signs of historic worm in the top of the hoop and in the seat which has all been treated as a precaution and hasn't affected the chair structurally or aesthetically. There is a small old repair where the hoop joins the arm and of course it is not without signs of age and use but nothing detrimental and it displays beautifully. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask. ...
