Description

A pleasing little occasional table from the Edwardian era. This round example could be used for a lamp perhaps or just to use as a side table, a versatile little chap. The top has been repolished in the past and the base is original. There is an inlay around the top as can be seen in the pictures. It is clean and ready for its new home and certainly is not going to break the bank at only £125. We have a number of occasional tables in stock so worth a further look on our web site if you after one.
