Description

For sale, a rare early Victorian Danchell's Patent Water Testing Kit by The London & General Water Purifying Company Limited of 157 The Strand, London. This wonderfully complete set is comprised of a three-tiered circular stand holding seven glass stoppered tubes retaining their original numbered labels and contents. The central shaft of the stand has Danchell's patent and the Royal cypher in relief with the manufacturing company's name below. The hollow centre of the shaft is fitted with two small test tubes which may be rested within hanging loops attached to the exterior of the shaft whilst in use. A small glass dropper is also stowed in the centre to allow the user to apply the various tests to water samples contained within the test tubes. The set comes complete with its original two-part stiff card case which is covered in its original black leather covering. The lid is further embossed "Danchell's Patent Water Tests" and "The London & General Water Purifying Company Ltd - 157 Strand". As part of the set, I also include a very rare copy of the original accompanying publication, "Water: Its impurities and purification by The London & General Water Purifying C...
