Description

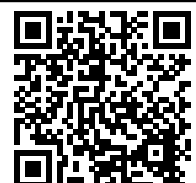

Sewing box circa 1830. One of the best Regency sewing boxes that we have had for sometime, in absolutely outstanding condition. The exterior has been professionally polished and buffed to a high finish, and is ready to go into a collection, be gifted, or just to enhance the decor of a fine home, as the box can be used for a variety of purposes, such as documents or jewellery. It comes with a working key and lock. The interior of the lid encloses a document envelope over a fitted tray with a variety of implements, which lifts out to a further well containing a variety of sewing accessories letters and amusing cards.
