Description

This is a fabulous 19th century oak refectory dining table. Great age and originality with a thick heavy top. It thankfully splits down into 4 pieces for ease of transport but the top is a probably a three person lift as it is extremely heavy. The colour to the oak is very light which makes it ideal for use in a both modern and traditional interiors. The rounded edges are a nice detail and give the table a very attractive design. The base is a bold design that compliments the thickness of the top perfectly. No major faults but the top does have a slight warp to it by 2cm. But hardly noticeable.
