Description

A very handsome mid 17th century oak centre table with gun barrel turned legs and original substantial block and turned reel stretchers. The table with a fabulous colour and deep rich patination. . The pair of freezer drawers with carved and moulded inset borders with brass drop handles which are early replacements and correct for the period. The sides and back frieze panels, each with matching carved and moulded borders, allow the table to be used either as a side table or to be placed in the centre of the room as it is finished on all sides with the decorative stretches on all four sides also. . Such fine design details were very expensive and this table would have cost a small fortune when made. It would have been displayed in the most prominent room for visitors in the house and given a high profile to demonstrate the owners wealth. . Heavy and robust, the table is beautifully proportioned with an oversailing twin boarded top (original also) with a gently curved border, again on all sides. . Some minor knocks and small marks consistent with careful use although oak of this age becomes hardened like iron and the table is in superb condition for its age. The...
