Description

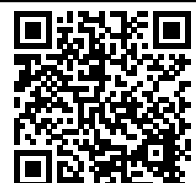

An Art Deco malachite glass box and cover by Heinrich Hoffman for Curt Schlevogt. In excellent condition, it depicts a reclining female nude modelled in relief. There is an apochryphal "R LALIQUE" stencil on the inside of the cover. This is a lovely example of the work of Heinrich Hoffman. Heinrich Hoffmann (1875 – 1939) and Henry Schlevogt (1904 – 1984) were relatives and both artists from North Bohemia, who worked in continuity, sometimes with the same design molds. These molds were all exclusively pressed by the powerful family glassworks of Josef Riedel established in Polaun (Polubný). Hoffman opened a shop selling glass jewellery in Paris in the early 1900s. After studying glassmaking in Gablonz he widened the range of his products to decorative pressed molds and flacons through the influence and artistic direction of René Lalique.
