Description

Lovely colours on this late 19th century runner, from the Kurdish weavers of the North-West of Persia, this antique runner has some wonderful light floral designs. The off-white border tone on this runner lifts the palette and works with the golden tones, and muted red pink colours. In great pile with very minimal lower areas of pile. Ends and sides have been secured. Woven in a loom in the ground, these were often taken up when the Kurd weavers would move onto pastures new. So they were rarely completely straight, this runner is very close to being straight. This adds a great deal to these collectable and beautiful runners in our opinion, and when laid flat on the floor with our underlay it would look superb, bringing colour and charm to a space. Visit our barn showroom in Crondall, Surrey, we are open Monday to Saturday by appointment. Or allow us to visit you with this antique runner so you can trial it at home soon.
