Description

Superb mahogany Canterbury/ magazine/ music rack from the Victorian era. The four curved dividers are united with brass and supported by a beautifully carved pedestal standing on a shaped platform base with scroll feet. The mahogany is a gorgeous rich colour with amazing patina it is in excellent condition with only age related marks. This is a decorative portable piece of furniture that will make a useful addition to any home. The 19th Century Victorian and later Edwardian love affair with the piano in the home gave rise to the popularity of the Canterbury. Internal Reference: SAI1340 The Canterbury was first introduced in the late 18th Century and got its name from the first commissioned piece by the Archbishop of Canterbury.
