Description

A very pretty Edwardian gold heart shaped pendant fronted with translucent blue guilloché enamel with a central natural split pearl in a gold-edged mount. Dating from c.1910. Would make a perfect "something blue" for a bride. Not hallmarked but the piece has been x-ray tested to confirm it is 15-carat gold. The pendant is in very good antique condition, with some flaws to the enamel which are visible under magnification (see photos) but not obvious when the pendant is worn. Size: The heart measures approx 1.4 x 1.4cm and the total pendant drop is 1.9cm. Weight: 1.7g. At the time of listing we have another similar Edwardian enamel heart pendant (see final photo). The chain in the photographs is not included in this listing. FREE INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING! Apologies but we cannot ship to Germany, any orders from Germany will be cancelled and refunded.
