Description

A very pretty Edwardian gold heart shaped pendant fronted with translucent turquoise guilloche enamel with a central natural split pearl in a gold-edged diamond-shaped mount. The pendant is absolutely typical of the early 1900s, which is confirmed by the inscription on the back reading MAY 14TH 1907. Would make a perfect "something blue" for a bride. Not hallmarked but the piece has been x-ray tested to confirm it is 15-carat gold. The pendant is in very good antique condition overall, but there is a small chip in the enamel at the bottom point of the heart, which is reflected in the price. Size: The heart measures approximately 1.5 x 1.5cm and the total pendant drop is 2cm. Weight: 2.6g. At the time of listing we have another similar Edwardian enamel heart pendant (see final photo): <https://www.etsy.com/listing/1232866434/antique-edwardian-15ct-gold-blue-enamel> The chain in the photographs is not included in this listing.
