Description

This 19thC Rosewood Occasional Table has a beautiful flowing design to the base. The end supports are carved and shaped to flow into the pair of feet, that themselves show good form. The centre stretcher adds strength, and with the base being made of solid rosewood there is a good weight to the table. The figured Rosewood top benefits from having a small, raised surround to it helping to stop anything rolling off. Being of a useful size and a very convenient height this table can be put to many uses around the home. Circa 19thC Dimensions Width 16½in/42cm Depth 13in/33cm Height 28in/71cm
