Description

Rare 19th Century Antique Oak Sideboard by Henry Woodyer A very rare antique oak sideboard by Henry Woodyer for Twyford Moor House in 1861. Woodyer was an English architect, the only pupil of William Butterfield, who was a disciple of Pugin and The Ecclesiological Society. This antique Woodyer chiffonier was one of only a few, free standing pieces in the Twyford Moors House, Winchester. Made in solid oak in the Gothic Revival manner to match the house, the chiffonier features open oak shelving over a large, two door cupboard. The chiffonier was limed along with other existing furniture in 1933 after the house became a hotel. A very rare piece with such super provenance, beautifully made in a quality rarely seen today. In excellent condition. Dimensions Height: 173cm (68.65") Width: 132cm (52.38") Depth: 60cm (23.81")
