Description

This attractive ANTIQUE GILT SHIELD-SHAPE WALL MIRROR dates from circa 1860. It is an interesting design particularly the graduated gilt mouldings which hang lightly from the sides and over the central panel. The mouldings give an impression that the mirror plate is divided but, in reality, the MIRROR is one piece of glass with the mouldings sitting gently on top. The MIRROR has an old, COUNTRY HOUSE feel and has aged well with pleasing signs of wear showing through on both frame and glass. The back board has been replaced at some time, possibly by The Rowley Gallery, London as it bears their label. There are two good, strong hanging rings. Height: 42.5 inches (108 cm) Width: 35 inches (89 cm)
