Description

This is an attractive clock that was extensively restored approximately 30 years ago. The substantial, 8 day duration, five finned pillar movement with Anchor Recoil escapement and internal countwheel striking on the large, gunmetal, top-mounted bell. Behind a 12" square brass dial. Having 'Indian's head', cast brass corner spandrels and a silvered and broad chapter ring with an outer ring, Arabic 5's numerals, minute track, Roman hour numerals, inner quarter track with a further ring and half hour Fleur-de-Lys markings. The dial centre is finely matted and has ringed winding holes, a square chamfered and patterned calendar date aperture and a silvered and bordered maker's cartouche bearing "Joseph Jackeman, LONDON" below centre. The blued steel hands are finely pierced. Contained in a walnut veneered slender case of good colour. The flat top having a large crossgrain moulded cornice above a blank frieze. This sits upon the full-size hood door with integral slim pillars with brass capitals. The sides have glazed viewing apertures. The lower hood skirt is crossgrained as is the large Cavetto throat. The trunk bears a full-length door with book-fold figured veneer, herrin...
