Description

An absolutely stunning example of Victorian piqué d'or - an intricate 19th century decorative technique developed in France where gold and/or sterling silver is inlaid into a material such as tortoiseshell. This brooch is of a rare butterfly design, beautifully smooth to the touch and nicely lightweight, making it very wearable. Dating from around 1860-70. The piece is in very good antique condition with just a few nibbles at the edge on the back. Secures with a C clasp. The metals are unmarked (as is often the case with pique work) but have been tested. Size: Approx 4.5 x 2.5cm (one inch tall). Weight: 5.2g. FREE INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING! Apologies but we cannot ship to Germany, any orders from Germany will be cancelled and refunded.
