Description

A good Georgian wine table dating from the late 18th / early 19th Century. It is a real country piece and is unusual in this case to be made from pine. It has a circular top set on a turned support with tripod legs. It is in good condition for its age. There are plenty of signs of age and use and this has developed a nice aged patina. There have been numerous old repairs including a new foot but the table is strong and sturdy. There are signs of historic worm which has all been treated as a precaution and hasn't affected the table structurally or aesthetically. It has been cleaned and gently polished and is ready for use. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask. Nationwide delivery available through our network of reliable couriers.
