Description

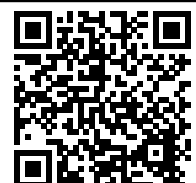

A fine quality, attractive and original late 18th century mahogany WALL CLOCK in perfect working order. The case is of typical 'saltbox' construction with a narrow moulded solid mahogany surround with both side and rear doors, and a deeply moulded cast brass bezel to the glass door. The 8-day movement is of "A" frame construction, retaining its original verge movement and fixed "bob" pendulum, whilst the good 10-inch diameter engraved and silvered dial is signed by the maker: Benj Simkin, London. A fine, pretty and rare example, circa 1785-1795. 12.5ins wide; 5.5ins deep (31.75 x 14cms)  Benjamin SIMKIN worked in London at No. 16, Borough High Street and No.6 Tooley Street from 1780-1806...see Britten's "Old Clocks and Watchmakers."
