Description

Description: This is a fine quality antique English Georgian mahogany wine table, with a tilt-top mechanism, circa 1800, in excellent original condition. The wine table retains its original tilting hinges and latch, allowing the table top to be stored vertically if not in use. Constructed with a single piece mahogany top (which is a sign of quality), wine table sits on an elegant ring turned mahogany pedestal, raised on three inverted legs, terminating on miniature bun feet. This occasional table boasts the original polish. The wine table has been cleaned and French polished by hand in our workshop to a professional standard, therefore the colour and patination is of an excellent standard. Condition Report: This is English Georgian mahogany wine table is in excellent original condition. Nominal old use marks to the leading edges, but nothing significant considering the age of them. The wine table has been cleaned and French polished by hand in our workshop to a professional standard, therefore the colour and patination is of an excellent standard. The legs are sturdy and are free from any breaks. This wine table is well constructed, solid in joint and ready to...
