Description

A very interesting oil signed by Meninsky, which is very much in the manner and style of Bernard Meninsky (1891–1951). This was sent to Bonhams; they could not be certain and therefore could not say yes, nor that it was not by the artist. Without provenance, they would not commit. This was purchased from a small auction house some time ago, and I have now decided to sell it. I believe it could be after studying many other works by the artist. There is a certain look that one can see within Meninsky's portraits and people; these certainly do appear to have that feature. I am unable to definitely attribute this to Meninsky, but my gut feeling tells me that it very well could be by him.
