Description

For your consideration is this fabulous Art Deco Marcel Franck perfume atomiser dating from the 1930s. Great Art Deco Geometric design in black enamel and contrasting etched stripes. Chromed metal 'Escale -Port of call' travel atomiser patented by Marcel Franck in 1936. Comes with its original leather storage case. In fantastic condition, there's no chips cracks or damage to the glass, the chrome plating to the atomiser top is still shiny with no loss. Bottle still retains its original price label to base. The leather storage case has some stains commensurate with age, but has kept the bottle in perfect condition over the years. Free UK mainland delivery BIO In 1882, Leopold Franck observes the development of perfume and handmade instruments used to spray the fragrances. He decides to start an industrial production of perfume atomizers. He first sells his products to department stores and perfumeries. Upon his death in 1907, his son Marcel took over the business. He soon had contracts for bottles with major crystal companies like Baccarat and Saint Louis and with the best glass artists (Lalique, Galle, Argy-Rousseau, etc.). He turned atomizers in work of art. The brand g...
