Description

A lovely rosewood sewing table. We date this table to the mid 19th century. The table sits on two very ornate turned legs with carved bases, these sit above a solid base on four castors recessed within ornately carved feet. The table has an octagonal top with lovely moulded edge at the base of the table skirting and is fitted with a drawer over a generous pull out basket. The basket has just been restored to a very high standard. The provided key locks drawer and basket at the same time. The table has a height of 30.5" (77cm), a width of 29" (74cm) and a depth of 18" (46cm). This lovely sewing table remains in a good solid condition with a very small repair to the table top. There are some minor marks around the feet from past use. This remains a very stylish and elegant antique sewing table. It will continue to provide good service for many years to come.
