Description

This is a high quality solid oak bookcase from the 1920's and formed part of an extensive suite. Very difficult to see off the proportions but the glass to the side doors is all bevelled and is much more pronounced in the flesh. The piece is nice and sturdy due to the stretchered base in-between the carved legs. the central carved door projects slightly from the side doors and hides three adjustable shelves that give good private space. All locks are working and the key is present. In one piece and in exceptionally good condition for it's 100 years.
