Description

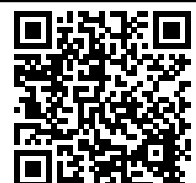

I love the interplay of madder-red and indigo-blue in this handsome rug, made by Baluch tribes in the Khorassan region of north-east Persia circa 1880. The centre comprises a bold tree-trunk, rising upwards, with the roots in the underworld, the trunk in the earthly world and the branches, which emanate outwards, in the spiritual realms. The main border, consisting of a continuous vine which was a popular design amongst the Baluch in the nineteenth century, symbolises the eternal cycle of life. The rug is in very good condition with the remains of its flat-woven skirts each end. Size: 1.68m x 1.10m (5' 6" x 3' 7").
