Description

This is a superb large Irish Regency Georgian mahogany Loo / Breakfast table, circa 1830 in date. The botanical name for the mahogany that this dining table is made of is Swietenia Macrophylla and this type of mahogany is not subject to CITES regulation. The beautifully oval shaped table top is supported on a bold turned column raised on four carved cabriole legs with two slightly exaggerated and featuring porcelain and brass castors. Condition: In excellent condition having been beautifully cleaned, French polished and waxed in our workshops, please see photos for confirmation.
