Description

Antique Double Fusee Architectural Mantel Clock With A Silvered Dial. This lovely antique mantel clock has a mahogany case with a lovely rich colour. The case then has a beautiful top designed to look like a traditional tiled roof. The front of the case then has a lovely intricate scrolling design to the top. This is then followed by mouldings and a brick design section which is continued in the sides. The front and sides then also have shaped pillars with the sides also having silk backed, fretwork panels. There is then a stepped base made of two sections each with brickwork patterning. Finally the back of the case has a silk backed fretwork panel. The dial is then silvered with silvered chapter rings. The main chapter ring is set out in black, engraved Roman numerals with a thin ring of dashes to mark the minutes. There is then a subsidiary "STRIKE SILENT" chapter ring so the clock can be silenced as well as a "FAST SLOW" chapter ring so the timekeeping can be adjusted. The dial is then engraved with a lovely scrolling design. Finally the dial is finished by four shaped fingers as well as a protective glass set into the door. The movement is then wound from the f...
