Description

A striking drum head bracket clock by Barraud and Lund of exceptional quality. The case is made of quarter sawn mahogany with a beautifully crisp silvered and engraved roman dial with blued steel hands. The eight day twin fusee movement striking on a gong with pendulum lock is of excellent quality signed and numbered 1874 to match the dial. Manufactured between 1849 and 1869 the company of Barraud and Lund was started in 1795 by Paul Phillip Barraud, when Richard Lund became a partner in 1838 the Lund was added to the company. The name changes of the company are useful markers for dating their work, and this clock falls into the 20 year period when the surnames were both singular. Barraud and Lund were noted London makers, celebrated for their high quality chronometers, regulators, pocket watches and clocks, they finally ceased trading in 1929. 41cm H x 35cm W x 19cm D
