Description

A superb and rare long set of fourteen antique Irish oak dining arm-chairs, Circa 1840 in date. The carved oak frames are decorated with three and four leaf clovers, foliage and oak leaves, the shoulders with overlapping discs. Each armchair has a padded back and seat reupholstered with a beautiful claret damask fabric with individual brass studs. These stunning armchairs have decorative scroll arms and they are raised on cabochon and fluted baluster front legs, the sabre back legs terminating in brass castors. It is rare to find such a large fabulous and comfortable set of chairs and they will enhance your dining or boardroom table beautifully. Condition: In excellent condition having been cleaned, polished, waxed and reupholstered in our workshops. Please see photos for confirmation.
