Description

This is another example of an unspoilt, mid 18th century table clock. The eight day duration, five pillar, double fusee movement with attached pendulum verge escapement and rack striking the hours on a top-mounted bell. Also having strike/silent, pull hour repeating and calendar datework. The backplate is fully engraved with a sweeping floral Rococo design and a lined border. Behind a 6 3/4" wide, brass break-arch dial with Rococo style cast brass corner and arch spandrels, finely matted chapter centres to the silvered strike/silent chapter ring in the arch and the main silvered chapter ring with large outer, Arabic five minute track and inner Roman hour numerals. The lower dial centre having a nicely executed, curved and chamfered aperture revealing the silvered maker's name plate bearing "Isaac Hurley" (of) "London" in fine, script. Below this is a square and chamfered calendar date aperture. The blued steel hands are finely pierced with a selector tailed hand to the arch for the strike/silent. In an ebonised fruitwood veneered oak case with an inverted bell top on which is mounted a cast brass, swinging carrying handle. The return-moulded top sits over the full-s...
