He was educated at the High School, and, having a decided taste for Art, became a student of the Board of Trustees' School of Design. His first exhibit in the Royal Scottish Academy was in 1812, "The Child John in the Wilderness." From that year he was a frequent and liberal contributor to the Annual Exhibition till 1867, when, following his removal to London, his contributions became less frequent. In 1884 he visited the United States, and two years later went to India. After three years' residence there he returned to London in 1889. Am...
