Description

A 19th century oil on canvas of very large proportions, depicting a grandmother and child in a woodland with a distant landscape and gathered sticks to the foreground. Monogrammed 'RA' to the lower right. The work has a beautifully executed and intriguing subject, with a wonderful use of light throughout. There is light craquelure in areas but generally the work remains in a very good condition. The frame is substantial and shows some wear commensurate with age but remains attractive. PROVENANCE: 18th century manor house, Co. Carlow, Ireland.
