Description

A good late 19th century French 'strike-repeating' brass Carriage clock by the famous Parisian clockmaker Alfred Drocourt. This example is in a 'Corniche' style case. The 8-day movement retains its original platform lever escapement and strikes hours and half-hours on a coiled-gong, repeating the last hour at will by depressing the button on top. The enamel dial is undamaged with roman numerals, diamond quarter markers and dot 5-minute markers with classic blued-steel moon-hands. The four bevelled-glass side panels are all undamaged, as is the bevelled glass oval panel to the top. Sold in full working order with key (key not original). Serial No: 19726. Signed to the back-plate (middle-left-edge) Dimensions: height (handle up): 6.5 inches (16.5 cm) width: 3.25 inches (8.3cm) depth: 3 inches (7.5cm) Date: c.1890-1900.

Internal Ref: 1279/2022/QSA
