Description

1 Fine Antique English Early 19th Century Wall Art Oil Painting Portrait Of Bay Hunter Horse 'Partisan' By Known Artist James Barenger. Subject Equine race horse portrait of a bay hunter horse Partisan, facing left outside in open green field landscape with trees in the background. Title Hunter In Landscape old label verso. Name of the horse is also inscribed verso "Partisan" & dated 1827 along with artist biography. Oil on canvas. Circa early 19th century. This painting is signed by the English known accomplished artist James Barenger. This is a fine example of his work. Partisan was a moderately good race horse who established a long-lasting sire line in Europe and England. He got several sons who exceeded his accomplishments on the turf, and three sons who sent the Highflyer sire line forward. Of the good daughters and producers that sprang from his sons, two, Queen Mary and Queen Bertha, had a significant influence on the breed. Partisan and his offspring ran during the nadir of English racing, when the sport was operating with Jockey Club rules. Partisan in the Stud Although he never led the sire's list, Partisan proved to be a highly influential sire. He got four cl...
