Description

This is an antique demi-lune table. An English, walnut and satinwood fold over card table, dating to the Georgian period, circa 1800. Beautiful Georgian craftsmanship for the finest gentleman's lounge. Displaying a desirable aged patina and in good order. Superb walnut stocks offer fine grain interest. Warm caramel hues beam beneath a wax polish finish. Demi-lune in form, the attractive top graced with quality satinwood and burr mahogany inlay. Opening outwards, the hinged top rests upon a pair of flying rear legs. Rear legs dressed with protective felt cushions to safely support the table top. Of great quality, the new emerald green baize is a delightful shade. Deep drum apron accentuated with boxwood inlays, between prominent block shoulders. Each shoulder decorated with an inset ormolu leaf mount. Striking boxwood and ebony Greek key banding to the lower edge. Standing upon slender circular legs, tapering gently to a quartet of brass castors. This is an exquisite antique demi-lune table, with profusely figured walnut stocks and a delightful expression of inlaid detail. Sure to enhance any hall or games room with its generous playing surface and quality appeal. Solid joints and...
