Description

This is an antique display bookcase. An English, burr walnut, library cabinet, dating to the Regency period, circa 1820. Striking example of Regency period library furniture. Displaying a desirable aged patina and in good order. Burr walnut stocks showing the finest grain interest and rich with caramel hues. Presenting a quality wax polish finish throughout. Prominent rolled top surface over a graceful cavetto edge moulding. Breakfront doors with grand pilasters framing the quality glazed panels. The right-hand door dressed with an inset working lock — key present. Interior arranged as a pair of velvet-dressed shelves — of generous size for a collection of treasured books. Graduated shelf heights of 33cm, 25.5cm and 28.5cm respectively. Each shelf offering a width of 75cm and depth of 33cm (29.5" and 13"). Quality finish to every surface, the sides graced with field panels. Standing upon a quartet of shaped bracket feet, with a nicely panelled back. This is an appealing antique display bookcase, with wonderfully glazed doors and superb figuring to the burr walnut. Solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home library. Dimensions: Max Width: 87cm...
