Description

This is a good quality antique harlequin set of six French kitchen chairs in the Louis XV style, constructed of solid oak, with rush seats and ladder-backs, circa 1920, with a rich colour and in excellent original condition. Featuring a shaped top rail with two further shaped rails below, in the form of a ladder-back design within the shaped upright supports; the six French kitchen chairs feature fixed rush seats, all of which are in good overall condition (see photos of each chair seat). The shaped seat frame incorporates a banded frieze. The seats are raised on fine block legs, terminating on shaped feet, to the front, with straight legs to the rear, all of which are united by elegantly shaped stretcher at front, with additional stretchers at the sides and rear, for added strength and stability. The six French kitchen chairs are solid in joint. The six French kitchen chairs boast a warm mellow colour. They boast a lovely colour and patination; this can only be achieved through age and the years of care and cleaning they have received. These six French kitchen chairs would look superb in a variety of rooms, especially the kitchen or dining room. They would certai...
