Description

This small silver plated water jug is dated Sheffield 1861 and was made by the celebrated Elkington & Co. It was possibly a whisky water jug, because of its small size but could equally be a milk jug. The silver mounted baluster body acid-etched with ferns and raised on a star-cut pedestal base. The reeded neck applied with classical decorations and incorporating a leaf-capped pourer and flying scroll handle. It is very decorative and the quality is superb, as one would expect from such a reputable firm. Electroplated marks. Electroplated marks of Elkington & Co. Date letter "W" for 1861.
