Description

This is an exceptional antique triple wardrobe. A Scottish, satinwood dressing cupboard with mirror by Taylor & Sons of Edinburgh, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1890. Striking craftsmanship and figuring for the grandest of bedrooms. Displaying a desirable aged patina and in superb antique order. Satinwood stocks present excellently, with fine grain interest. Light, warm caramel hues beam beneath a wax polish finish. Arranged as a three-door wardrobe, with large dressing mirror to centre. On the left, a generous hanging space over a deep linen drawer. Quality brass fittings to the wardrobe section, with several hooks and hanging rail. Opening the right-hand door reveals a suite of three slides over three drawers. Quality carving decorates the scroll pediment crown and door fascia. In fine order, the bevelled mirror plate presents a clear, bright reflection. Maker's marks present for John Taylor & Sons, Cabinet Makers, Edinburgh. Raised upon a plinth foot with a shaped front apron. This is an exquisite antique triple wardrobe, crafted with wonderful satinwood stocks, with great colour and figuring. Accentuated with attractive carved frieze panels and a generous dressing...
