Description

George III mahogany bureau This George III mahogany bureau was made circa 1785. This George III mahogany bureau would have been made for a major property on an important estate in the North Country. The superb timber would have been selected by the cabinetmaker to utilise the wonderful 'plum pudding' in the wonderful grain. (It is known as plum pudding as the mahogany looked like a plum pudding) Having 4 long graduated drawers, with the original brass bale swing handles. The fall is opened to reveal drawers, pigeonholes, and a door to the centre, that in turn opens to reveal a storage space and a further 2 drawers. A bureau is one of my own personal favourite items of Georgian furniture as they not only have the wow factor closed but also when you open the fall you have the pleasure of seeing the wonderful and interesting interior. It allows for instant tidy up, as you can quickly close the fall!!! Imagine the pride of ownership having this George III mahogany bureau and the pleasure you will have sat at it as you work on your i-pad or computer. 111cms wide at base 43 1/2ins 57cms deep 22 1/2ins 107cms high 42ins All dimensions are approximate.
