Description

A Superb Georgian very Large Dining Table in Mahogany, it has seven leaves which are well figured timber, eight legs so never any worries about its strength, it has a pull out extension mechanism and the leaves are secured with the original brass clips, it is basically two separate table which are joined in the middle with two brass bolts and can be used with any combination of the seven leaves, it can if necessary be used as a pair of side table with the leaves stored away when not needed as a dining table. The condition is excellent, the firm of Gillows were the first to make this type of extension table they called it the Imperial table, this one has no makers names but is of a superb quality, will seat up to 20 diners, sorry about the quality of the pictures this is such a large table I can only photograph it outside and its been either raining or strong sunlight as it was on this day. circa 1830 DIMENSIONS LENGTH 7 LEAVES 516 CMS WIDTH 146 CMS HEIGHT 78 CMS
