Description

A good Mid 19th Century Antique English Victorian Copper Saucepan and Cover of small size, holding just a pint and a half of liquid, this would originally formed part of a graduated set of saucepans. The body of the pan, of seamed construction, being stamped with an heraldic ducal crown device above the letter C indicates that this delightful item has a noble provenance and has clearly spent it's working life in the kitchen of a large aristocratic establishment. Now a desirable decorative accessory for the traditional period kitchen.
