Description

An alabaster sculpture of a young woman in a loosely fitting robe standing in water; Art Nouveau c.1900. She holds her robe to keep it from the water, depicted as the marble base. This beautiful statue is in patinated alabaster and in generally good condition; there are some abrasions and small losses, as can be seen in the images, but nothing that detracts from its beauty. The hands are especially well executed. SIZE: 23.5 inches tall. Base 9 inches square. PROVENANCE: Private Collection, London.
