Description

This rich solid nine-carat gold and enamel ring features a black hardstone, likely sardonyx, carved into a traditional forget-me-not design - in the Victorian language of flowers the forget-me-not stands for remembrance, true love and loyalty, a powerful reminder of a love lost. The outside of the shank is inscribed by hand in a lovely sloping cursive: "Thomas Clarke born March 23 1799 died Feb 18 1881" - a very good age for a Victorian gentleman, when the average lifespan was around 45 for men. Fully hallmarked for Birmingham nine-carat gold with the date letter W (1871) and makers mark FW. The ring is in very good antique condition with normal surface wear and a little enamel loss. Size: T (UK), approximately 9.5 (US). The face of the ring measures approx 1.1 x 1cm. Weight: 1.9g. FREE INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING! Apologies but we cannot ship to Germany, any orders from Germany will be cancelled and refunded. Antique boxes pictured are not included unless specified, your item will come in a new box.
