Description

This 19thC Good Quality Mahogany Two Drawer Library Writing Table is of a very refined design and well drawn. Standing on finely turned column supports, with the turned bun feet incorporating a discreet castor in each for ease of moving. The narrow rim incorporates two drawers that are of a good depth. The table has a good weight to it, due its dense timber which is always a good sign. Finished all round it can be placed centrally in a room. With a generous knee height, it would be extremely comfortable to sit at, if required. Presented in a very good, restored condition with smooth running drawers.
