Description

This superb example was made in the mid 19th century to fake an early example. It is beautifully hand made from rich period timbers which are dating from the 17th century and when carefully examining the piece evidence can be found of recycling some of its components from 17th century pieces. Because the timber has been carefully selected this beautiful armchair has superb colour and patination which you would not associate with 19th century pieces. This interesting chair would fit in with the best early pieces of oak furniture.
